THE NEXT GOVERNOR.—A correspondent of one of the up-country papers urges, with great warmth, the nomination of Col.
Peyton, now a member of the Senate from the Jackson District, as the Democratic candidate for Governor at the election next August. Those who know Col. PEYTON—his effectiveness on the stump as well as in the Senate—will not be surprised at his nomination for this office. But it seems to us that gentlemen have somewhat misconceived the issues likely to be presented at the next general election—that it will not be simply a question between the Democratic party and any other party on political issues, but that within the past year grave questions have arisen, upon the settlement of which depends the ascendancy of that party in the State elections. We are not in the habit of blinking questions, and prefer, therefore, to speak right out in meeting.— It may be that our views are of very little importance, as we represent no party, but we still have the privilege of speech, and we mean to write and print just what we think.

When Gov. POLK was elected to the chief Executive office of this State, it will be conceded that it was effected by an influence outside of the Democratic party; it was done by men who were exceedingly solicitous for the prosperity of the State, and particularly for the advancement of the system of internal improvements then fully under way. There is not a man who holds office at Jefferson City at this day, who was not elected by the votes from this quarter.

At the last session of the Legislature, it is not to be concealed, that those who had kept the Democratic party in power, even as late as last August, were greatly disappointed at the result of the legislation of that session. They did expect—they had a right to expect—the great interests of the State demanded—that all should be granted to the railroads, and particularly to the Kansas Branch of the Pacific road. But it was quite apparent, at a very early period of the session, that the members of the Legislature had been elected on other and less important issues, or that a change had come over the spirit of those who had before been zealous, active internal improvement men.

We shall not discuss this point, but will dismiss it with the single remark, that nothing was done, some of the members craving time to go home to consult with their constituents, and now proceed to another matter.

If there be any aspirant for the office of Governor who supposes that he is going to be nominated without being first "smoked out" on this question, he never was more mistaken in his life. The session of the Legislature in November cannot pass without the Democratic party taking ground, one way or the other, on this Railroad subject.

The members of the Legislature asked time to consider this question—to see what they should do—and we tell them plainly, as we have done before, that if they refuse to grant aid to the Railroads next November, they will go into a minority in August. We are not holding out any menace to them—we are only sounding in their ears the notes of warning, so that they may be prepared for the fate that awaits them. On the deliberations of the Legislature at the next session hangs the fate of the Democratic party, so far as the State election is concerned.

Not only has Col. PEYTON been named for this office, but there are troops of men who are anxious for it. There is BURSIS-TOWN in the centre, WALKER JOHNSON and Acock in the South-west, PARSONS at Jefferson City, W. P. HALL at St. Joseph, HANKOCK JACKSON in Randolph, PETER CARR in Pike, ISAAC H. STRANGOR in St.
Louis, C. F. JACKSON of Saline, and we know not how many more, all of whom have more or less of the confidence of the party.

It is said of one of these gentlemen that, on being invited to express his views on this, and perhaps kindred topics, in a letter, he declined, saying that he did not wish to commit himself to any measure of public policy.
If he so wrote, he did an imprudent thing.
No such dodge will be permitted even by his party friends, and there are others who certainly will not. The very suggestion, that a man seeking so high an office, is afraid or unwilling to express his opinion on so important a question, will lead to distrust of his capacity for the place. At all events, he will have to make his views known, and that, too, in time, or a prejudice will be excited—a doubt will be raised—which will assuredly affect his chances of a nomination, and, what is of still greater moment, his prospects of an election.

The Democratic party has to show its hand on this Railroad question in November—it has to give State aid to the Pacific Railroad to Kansas City, and such aid to other roads as a wise judgment may think prudent—or it will drive from its support thousands of men who voted for Polk; men who think that State interests are of far more importance than the success of even the Democratic party. Let them look to it.

THE WEST—ITS CROPS AND TRADE.—The present aspect of affairs in many of our principal Western cities, and the distrust with which Eastern merchants look upon trade from that section, are suggestive of what should be the policy of farmers at the present time. The folly of hoarding crops in the expectation of future rise in prices, we think, has been fully demonstrated within the past two years. It has been injurious to the farmer, because in nine cases out of ten the producer cannot afford to act as speculator. It has been injurious to the trader, because from the proceeds of the farmer's crops alone could he expect to obtain payment for his goods; for the various causes which induced extensive emigration to the West some years since, sent there a class of people whose ready capital was exhausted in their land purchase, farm stock, seeds, &c. They saw but one side of the picture—that which revealed to them golden visions of large crops, and an unlimited demand. But the California discoveries, the Crimean war, &c.—which created a large foreign, and the mania for railroad building a large domestic, demand—ceased; and with this cessation came a reaction in prices. The "seven plenteous years" had gone, the farmers were unwilling to sell at diminished prices, and by one dodge and another, with the aid of speculators, succeeded in producing a fictitious panic, hoping thereby to advance prices, but the immense crops of this year, with the large surplus stock that cannot be longer concealed, has taught them by bitter experience the folly of such a course.

It is manifestly, then the true policy of the Western farmer to send his crops to market even if he does not realize more than the cost of producing them—rather than follow the course pursued in 1857 and 1858.

There is nothing in the present or prospective, that will warrant the expectation of high prices; and by realizing the present value in cash, the farmer pays his debts to the traders, and the traders are enabled to settle with their Eastern creditors.

In so doing, credit is restored; the products of the country are on their way to the seaboard, to supply the Eastern demand, and for shipment. There is another suggestion. Let the West take the initiative steps in discouraging the foreign importations by persistently refusing to buy. Just so long as they purchase foreign fabrics, without any foreign market for their grain, just so long will they remain in debt, and keep the current of specie setting towards Europe, while American grain waits for buyers and consumers.—[Boston Commercial Bulletin.

Our neighbor of the Democrat wants to know where we are going now. We are going to stand exactly where we are; and through God's blessing, the emergencies of the times, and the high intrinsic justice of our position, we shall in 1860, we confidently believe, find patriots enough to stand with us to expel his miserable party from the seats of national power. If we shall be disappointed in this cherished hope so much the worse for our beloved Union.

But we shall not be disappointed. However this may be, our own duty is too dear for misgiving or mistake. Between the Black Republicans and the Black-and-Red Democracy, we can take no part, except that of the uncompromising and unflinching adversaries of both.—[Journal.

The Journal talks good sense as usual.

ACCIDENT TO A FREIGHT TRAIN.—The freight train due here yesterday evening, on the Hannibal and St. Joseph Railroad, met with an accident near Shelbyville, by which a car freighted with valuable merchandise, consisting of hats, spices, molasses, castings kettles, farming utensils, cotton yarns, &c., was burned. The remainder of the train came on as soon after as practicable. The damage to shippers, whatever it may be, will be promptly settled by the company.

From the New Orleans Crescent.

The Slave Trade.

The Northern paper, of all phases of political or other complexion, are now, and have been for some months past, terribly exercised about what they choose to term a renewal of the African slave trade. Columns ponderous and columns verbose—columns denunciatory and columns sarcastic—columns foolish and columns fantastical—have been written and published daily for the last six months, having sole reference to this particular subject, and no signs of a termination of the windmill warfare have yet manifested themselves.

For our part, we have enjoyed the spectacle, and take great pleasure at all times in witnessing the contortions of the Pharisical friends of the African race. We like to see, somewhat, a fanatic and hypocrite invent a falsehood, and then impale himself upon it for the edification of the careless public and the amusement of all sensible men. It is so funny.

Perhaps we have helped on the delusion under which so many of the Free Soil papers of the North labor. If so, we shall not beg pardon of anybody. We alluded to the matter on several occasions, and assumed neither positive nor negative grounds. Indeed, we are not sure but that we very slightly encouraged the idea that the African slave trade was in active operation. If we did—we don't, exactly remember at this present writing—it was to make Greely, Beecher and Company ovort, howl and rave, not because we had any definite or other object in the premises. We were well aware that a large majority of Southern slaveholders were opposed to a reopening of the traffic, and were convinced that nothing of the sort on anything like an extensive scale could be consummated without our knowledge—our means of acquiring information being rather large than otherwise. Perhaps one or two cargoes of Congos, numbering two or three hundred persons each, have been landed on Southern shores from Yankee vessels, manned by Yankee officers and seamen, and fitted out and supported by Yankee money and enterprise exclusively, within the last twelve months. Of even this we are by no means sure; but if it be the case, a Yankee at home, no doubt a rampant Abolitionist, was at the bottom of it. A real Southerner would no more think of going to Congo for a supply of laborers than he would of applying to the man in the moon to take up a note in bank for him.

The widely circulated report that seventy cargoes of slaves have been landed within the last few months, and that quite a fleet of slave ships is on the way, we regard as sheer and unmitigated fabrication. There can be no truth in it! It is impossible that such things could transpire without being generally known. Hence the utter absurdity of the report. But whether absurd or false reasonable or unreasonable, it is all the same to the Abolitionists, who never want anything but a pretext or an excuse for assailing the Southern people indiscrimi-nately, and in the most villainous terms.

Eight Children at a Birth.

JOHN W. TRUMBULL county, O., Aug. 4.

On the 2d of August, Mrs. Timothy Bradley gave birth to eight children—three boys and five girls. They are all living, and are healthy, but quite small. Mr. B's family is increasing fast. He was married six years ago to Eunice Mowery, who weighed 273 pounds on the day of their marriage. She gave birth to two pairs of twins, and now eight more, making twelve children in six years. It seems strange, but nevertheless is true, Mrs. B. was one of three, her mother and father both being twins and her grandmother the mother of five pairs of twins. Mrs. B. has named her boys after noted and distinguished men.— One after the Hon. Joshua R. Giddings, who has given her a splendid gold model; one after the Rev. Hon. Elijah Champlain, who gave her a deed of 50 acres of land, and the other after James Johnson, Esq., who gave her a sow. Mr. Bradley says it is a profitable to have twins, as the neighbors have clothed the others ever since they were born. Mr. B. is a poor industrious laborer, but says he will not part with any of his children while he is able to work.

This Rowdy.—The rowdy is a terrible nuisance. Hear how the poor Dutch landlord described his sufferings at the hands of one of these amiable beings: "Ter rowdy comed in and axed me to sell him some beer. I tells him he had more as would do him good. He call me von old Tutoh liar, and begun to broke two tumblers.— My wife she call for de vatch 'ouse. Fore de vatch got dare, do rowdy he kick Hans Scruggles pebint his pack, kissed my tugh-ter Pety before her face, prack all ter tumblers ceptr ter old stone pitcher, and spit my wife and toddler peer parrels down inter cellar."

University of Missouri.

An adjourned meeting of the Board of Curators of this Institution, took place on Monday the 22d inst., and continued until Tuesday afternoon.

The chief object of the meeting was the selection of a suitable person for President of the University; to which end a committee of correspondence had been previously appointed at the annual meeting in July, consisting of Caleb S. Stone, P. H. Mc-Bride, M. Bright and J. W. Harris. This committee, in the short time intervening, succeeding in obtaining information of several gentlemen of talent, high moral character and extensive literary attainments, any one of whom would be an honor to any literary institution; and on careful deliberation, the Board elected, unanimously, AL-

How THEY PREDICT THE WEATHER AT THE SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION.—Professor Henry at the Smithsonian Association gave an account of the method pursued each day at the Smithsonian Institute to record and predict the weather. They have a map of the United States hung upon a board, with pins stuck through it at the points
